Heating Technology

The Heating Technology Certificate program prepares the student with skills and knowledge used for careers in the heating industry. Students learn how to assemble and repair heating systems according to the code specifications of the National Fire Protection Association. The safe and efficient use of tools and materials is stressed as students work in a shop and at a one-week co-op with different types of heating systems. Certified Employee Training Program in Propane and Natural gas is also available. Upon successful completion of the program, graduates are eligible to take the State Journeyman Oil Burner License Examination and are qualified for employment with heating contractors and in fuel oil companies in maintenance or sales positions. Additional experience may provide graduates with opportunities as managers, supervisors or operators of their own business.
